

Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 14 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

A wet outlook, and becoming milder from Monday.

Today:

A wet day, with a risk of freezing rain in the morning leading to icy stretches. Into the afternoon further rain comes in, heavier and more widespread. Windy with coastal gales and feeling cold. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Tonight:

Rainfall continues for a time, but then begins to clear eastwards allowing cloud to break up and a few fog patches to form. Staying windy, and milder than recent nights. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Monday:

A murky start, then a dry day before some showers move in briefly for a time in the north. Elsewhere, remaining dry with some sunny spells. Breezy, but much milder. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:

Sunshine and blustery showers on Tuesday. Brighter and drier Wednesday before rain arrives during the night and continues into Thursday morning, before clearing to give sunny spells later. Windy throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.